SELECTING A UNIT THAT IS RIGHT FOR YOU
AND PORTABILITY PROCEDURES

The purpose of portability is to provide greater flexibility and a wider range of available units under the Housing Choice Voucher Program. The 1998 Housing Act grants the statutory right of nationwide participant portability. This means that you may move to any Public Housing Agency (PHA) administering the Voucher Program. The only exception to this rule is for an applicant or participant who did not live the PHA jurisdiction at the time of his or her application for participation. Those persons must lease a unit within that jurisdiction for at least twelve months before they can transfer (or "port") to another PHA.

WHAT TO CONSIDER

When deciding to rent a unit, families should take into consideration, the condition of the unit and surrounding neighborhoods. Rent, utility costs, and the energy efficiency should be factors in deciding whether or not to lease a unit. Additionally, there are advantages to locating housing in areas outside high-poverty census tracts. (A high-poverty census tract is a census tract in which at least 40 percent of the persons for whom poverty status is determined have incomes below the poverty level.)

HUD's goals are for PHA's to assist families to live outside areas of high poverty or minority concentration. HUD is encouraging PHA's to provide information to you concerning renting units outside these areas and to encourage property owners (who have rental units outside these areas) to participate in the program.

While Clackamas County does not have any high-poverty census tracts or areas of minority concentration, it is important for you as a renter to look at the neighborhood where you wish to lease up. The Milwaukie Area has about a 13% poverty level and Estacada has about a 18% poverty level.

The advantages to moving to an area outside a high-poverty census tract area may enable you to receive better services such as schools, a lower crime rate, better public services, the availability of increased medical services, shopping and other amenities.

We are providing you with the following information in an effort to assist you in making good choices as to where you wish to live:

Procedures to Transfer

Initial Housing Authority (PHA):
If you are eligible to transfer based on the criteria listed on page one of this information, notify your Occupancy Specialist or Eligibility Specialist of the location of the unit you want to lease. As the initial PHA, the Housing Authority of Clackamas County (HACC) will promptly notify the receiving PHA of your intentions to relocate to their PHA. We will mail a completed HUD form 52665, "Family Portability Information" to the receiving PHA along with the most recent 50058 and income verification.

A list of "Portability Contacts" is included in the material that is being provided to you today. The PHA's listed are the agencies bordering our jurisdiction. You may find this helpful if you need to contact another agency should you find housing in their jurisdiction. HACC will need to send the portability information if you do find housing which is located outside Clackamas County.

Receiving Housing Authority (PHA):
The HACC, as the receiving PHA, will administer tenant-based assistance for the family if the unit they choose for rental is located in Clackamas County. HACC will absorb the family into our own Voucher Program if the Housing Authority has Vouchers available. If HACC is near its utilitization rate, we may choose to bill the Initial Housing Authority.

When HACC receives the completed HUD form 52665 and required attachments from the Initial Housing Authority, we will contact the family and set up an in-office appointment to complete the application process. In addition, all transfers must go through our criminal background process prior to be admitted to our program. The family will be briefed on the program and receive their Voucher and briefing packet. HACC may decide to conduct a re-examination of the family's circumstances. However, we will not delay the issuance of a Voucher or otherwise delay approval of a unit, unless the re-certification is necessary in order to determine income eligibility.

The Initial Housing Authority issued the bedroom size on the Voucher according to their subsidy standards. The bedroom size on your Voucher issued by HACC may change as a result of the subsidy standards allowed under HACC's Administrative Plan.

In addition, HACC will extend the incoming Voucher expiration by 30 days, per HUD regulation. Any further extensions must be given by the Initial Housing Authority.
